"Ambassadors With Wings"

Dedicated to the youth of all nations who have participated in Civil Air Patrol's International Air Cadet Exchange who now, as Exchange Alumni, continue to foster the international understanding and good will that has been the inspiring motivation for IACE for the past sixteen years.

"The United States is delighted to welcome participants in Civil Air Patrol's 16th annual International Air Cadet Exchange. Bringing together young men of the free world in a climate of mutual interest and good will, CAP's summer exchange program plays a significant role in America's unceasing effort to achieve a lasting peace through friendship and understanding."

JOHN F. KENNEDY
President (1960-63)
United States of America

"Civil Air Patrol's contribution to world leadership, international understanding and good will through sixteen years of sponsoring the International Air Cadet Exchange is an enviable record of which we are very proud. It was my great pleasure to welcome all participants of the 16th annual exchange and I was extremely impressed with the caliber of young men seeking knowledge of other countries. I am proud to have known all of you for even a brief time this summer."

The National Board

The National Board is the governing body of the Civil Air Patrol Corporation. It is composed of the Chairman, National Commander, National Finance Officer, National Legal Officer, 8 Regional Commanders and 52 Wing Commanders. The National Board meets annually to conduct the affairs of the corporation. Since Sept 1962 Col Paul W Turner, CAP, of Nashville, Tennessee, has presided as its chairman. Col

Lyle W Castle, CAP, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is the Vice-Chairman. The National Chairman of the Board also serves as chairman of the National Executive Committee which meets quarterly. The National Board authorizes CAP support and indorsement of the International Air Cadet Exchange each year. Planning for 1964 has been completed and officials state that new countries will be included next year.

National Project Officer

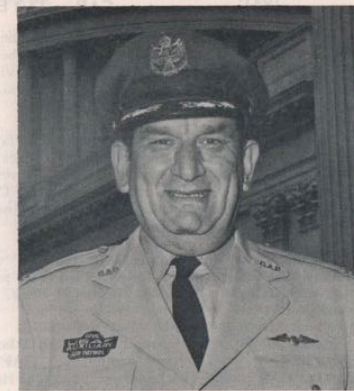

LtCol Foley D Collins Jr, USAF Director of Cadet Special Summer Activities, National Headquarters, CAP, is a veteran Air Force officer, serving as National Project Officer. He has previously served as asst NPO and as an escort officer. He was assisted by TSgt Roy A Harrell and SSgt Jackie L Gaskill. The project officer and his staff planned and arranged for passports, airlift, accommodations and the many details which assured the successful exchange program for more than 350 participants this summer.

Lt Col Foley D Collins, USAF

Lt Col William H Schuelie, CAP

Col Barney Breeskin, CAP

New York and Washington IACE Committees

Special IACE working committees have been organized in New York and Washington, DC, to assist the national project officer with the complex itineraries necessary for the visiting cadets' entertainment. In New York City, LtCol William H Schuelie, CAP, is chairman of the IACE committee. Col Schuelie has directed the New York operations for many years and his committee is made up of selected members of the New York Wing of Civil Air Patrol. In Washington, DC, Colonel Bamee Breeskin, CAP, is the national commander's special representative for the IACE. Col Breeskin is assisted by members of the National Capital Wing of CAP in preparing an itinerary which each year includes a visit to the White House, official welcomes from congressmen and high government officials. The New York and Washington IACE committees play a vital role in the program.

AVEA

The Aviation Exchange Alumni, known as AVEA, includes all cadets and escorts who have participated in the International Air Cadet Exchange. AVEA was created to perpetuate and extend the good will, friendships, and camaraderie achieved through the effort, time, and money spent by all participating parties of the Exchange. LtCol Frederic S Schleger, CAP, was appointed as Chairman of AVEA in 1955 and served in that capacity through the 16th Exchange. More than 4000 former IACE participants are members of this exclusive fraternity. Each year the Ex-Cell-O Corporation donates a lapel pin in the form of the IACE emblem to all cadets and escorts. AVEA maintains membership lists, encourages correspondence between its members, and prepares and distributes news bulletins to its members.

Lt Col Frederic S Schleger, CAP

Civil Air Patrol was created one week before Pearl Harbor. An Executive Order on December 1, 1941, marked the beginning of a volunteer civilian organization of pilots and aviation enthusiasts that has endured for more than two decades.

The concept of CAP began when civil aviation was in danger of being grounded by the threat of war. In 1939, Gill Robb Wilson approached Governor Charles Edison of New Jersey with a plan for Civil Air Defense Services. The CADS of New Jersey became the model for Civil Air Patrol.

Prominent aviation enthusiasts credited with founding CAP included Gill Robb Wilson (now publisher of "Flying" magazine), Thomas H Beck, and Guy P Gannett.

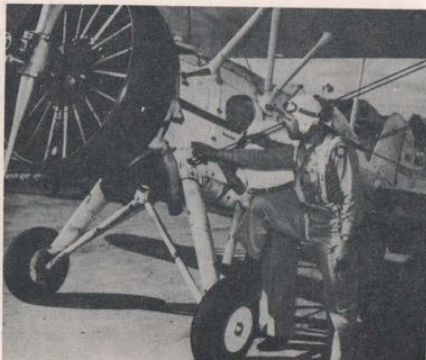

Lt Gen Henry "Hap" Arnold appointed a board headed by Brig Gen George E Stratemeyer, AAF, to study the CAP plan. The board included Col Harry H Blee, Maj A B McMullen, and Maj Lucius P Ordway.

On December 1, 1941, Fiorello H LaGuardia, Director of Civilian Defense, signed the order creating CAP and designated Maj Gen John F Curry, AAF, as CAP's first national commander. Gill Robb Wilson became the executive officer and Col Blee the training officer. Wing commanders were appointed in all 48 states.

Three coastal patrol bases were established on the Atlantic coast and equipped with private light planes donated by their owners. During coastal patrol operations, which ended on August 31, 1943, CAP pilots flew more than 24,000,000 miles over water. CAP is credited with sinking or damaging at least two subs. The volunteer flyers found 17 floating mines and rescued hundreds of victims of ship sinkings. Sixty-four members gave their lives during the war - 26 on coastal patrol.

CAP flew border patrol courier service and more than 20,000 tow-target missions, and performed nationwide search and rescue service.

Earle L Johnson assumed command of CAP in 1942. He was commissioned a Captain in the AAF and rose to the rank of Brigadier General in 1947.

Navy Boeing F4B4, 1942

The cadet program was begun in October 1942 and became a valuable source of aviation cadets for the Army Air Force. The first military light planes were given CAP in 1944; and it assumed extra duties of disaster relief, mercy missions, and expanded search and rescue activity. The FCC authorized a CAP communications network that same year.

Public Law 476 of the 79th Congress, approved July 1, 1946, incorporated Civil Air Patrol and in May 1948, the 80th Congress made CAP an official civilian auxiliary of the US Air Force.

Brig Gen Frederick H Smith Jr, USAF (Air Force vice chief of staff, 1961) assumed command of CAP in 1947. Gen Smith was succeeded by Maj Gen Lucas V Beau, USAF, late in the same year.

Wilson

Gen Beau was followed in 1956 by Maj Gen Walter R Agee, USAF, who served until 1959. Brig Gen Stephen D McElroy, USAF, then assumed command. He moved with National Headquarters from Bolling AFB, Washington, DC, to Ellington AFB, Texas in 1959. Col Paul C Ashworth, USAF, became CAP's seventh national commander on December 15, 1961.

Gen Carl A "Tooe" Spaatz, USAF (Ret), was CAP's first national board chairman in 1948, succeeded in turn by Col D Harold Byrd, CAP, 1959; Col William C Whelen, CAP, 1961; and Col Paul W Turner, CAP, 1962.

Today, CAP numbers about 80,000 members, 45,000 of whom are cadets. Wings are active in all 50 states, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia and perform more than 60% of all search and rescue activities in the US. CAP's radio net includes more than 14,000 FCC licensed stations.

CAP conducts aerospace education for cadets and introduced these courses into many high schools. More than 100 CAP sponsored aviation workshops are held in universities each year. Honor courses for cadets are held annually including Jet, Aerospace, Space Age, and Federal Aviation Agency orientation; National Drill Competitions at the AF Academy; and the International Air Cadet Exchange.

Civil Air Patrol adopted a long range plan in 1962 through which it hopes to increase its membership to 100,000 cadets and 60,000 seniors by 1966.

Civil Air Patrol, the hastily organized stepchild of WW II, survived the adolescence of the years between 1941 and 1961 and "became of age" on its 21st birthday December 1, 1962.

The Air Cadet League of Canada proposed the International Air Cadet Exchange in 1947. An invitation was extended to Maj Gen Lucas V Beau, USAF, national commander of Civil Air Patrol, inviting CAP to join the exchange program. In his report to Congress in 1948, Gen Beau outlined plans for CAP's participation in the IACE and obtained approval. The first exchange between two countries took place that summer when Civil Air Patrol and the Air Cadet League of Canada exchanged cadets.

The purpose of the IACE, then and now, is to foster international understanding, good will and fellowship among the youth of the free world. The CAP cadets and their counterparts from foreign countries are selected for their extraordinary leadership, character, good citizenship merits, and air-mindedness.

Beau

The CAP-Air Cadet League of Canada initial exchange in 1948 was so well received that immediate plans were made for expansion. Unlike present exchanges, the 1948 program was limited to a tour of the US and Canada instead of being hosted by individual wings in the US. Tour personnel included two US escorts and 24 CAP cadets to Canada and a similar number of Canadians to the US - a total of 52 participants.

From this modest beginning in 1948 the IACE has expanded to its present scope of 21 countries, with plans to add more in the future.

In 1949, a total of four countries exchanged cadets with the US - Canada, France, Great Britain, and Switzerland. One hundred and thirty-six CAP cadets went abroad and the same number of foreign cadets and escorts visited the US.

Italy and Portugal were added in 1950. The exchange was expanded still further in 1951 to include Brazil, Denmark, Luxembourg, Mexico, The Netherlands, Norway, Spain, and Sweden. In 1952 Belgium came into the program. Luxembourg dropped out in 1953, but Greece and Turkey were added. Chile, Cuba, Peru, and Venezuela joined in 1954, and Israel signed up in 1955. With the addition of Uruguay in 1956 the exchange hit a peak of 22 foreign countries participating with the US. A total of 150 CAP cadets and 44 escorts were exchanged with a like number of cadets and escorts from these countries in 1956 for a total of 388 participants.

In 1957, Mexico dropped out but did host US cadets. Venezuela and Uruguay also dropped out, but West Germany came into the program. The Lebanon crisis in 1958 caused Greece, Israel, and Turkey to withdraw because of airlift problems, but Mexico came back into the fold.

Greece, Israel, and Turkey reentered the program in 1959, and this same year Cuba and West Germany dropped out. In 1960 Chile was forced to bow out because of an earthquake disaster, and Mexico also elected to leave the program.

In 1961, Peru was unable to send cadets to the US but did host the CAP cadets. Peru offered its quota to neighboring countries and El Salvador responded entering the program unofficially for the first time. Germany also came back into IACE after an absence of two years.

Guatemala joined the IACE in 1962, but the Guatemalan cadets were unable to visit the US. Guatemala did, however, host the US cadets. El Salvador sent a double quota of cadets to the US, with groups visiting Maine and Minnesota. Argentina, Ecuador, and Costa Rica joined the Exchange in 1963. Brazil, Guatemala, and Italy dropped out.

Every state on the US continent has hosted foreign cadets at least once. The District of Columbia and Puerto Rico also have hosted foreign groups.

From 1948 through 1963, a total of 1760 CAP cadets and 473 CAP and USAF escort officers have taken part in the IACE. Foreign cadets have numbered 1741 along with 445 escort officers. The grand total for the sixteen years is 4419 participants.

The cost of food, lodging, and entertainment during the exchange is borne by Civil Air Patrol and the host countries. All airlift is provided by the US Air Force and several of the participating countries.

The International Air Cadet Exchange has been publicly acknowledged by the President of the United States, heads of foreign governments, American and foreign ambassadors, and read into the Congressional Record. All cited it as a significant contribution toward better international understanding between free nations.

On Tuesday, July 16, cadets boarded USAF Military Air Transport Service planes at Andrews AFB, Md, for Rhein/Main Air Base, Frankfurt, Germany. Two plane loads of cadets and their CAP and USAF escort officers departed within an hour for the 18-hour trip to Europe. Landing at Rhein/Main Air Base, the cadets were greeted by Col Horace A Crosswell, USAF, base commander, who entertained the American and foreign cadets at dinner. The next morning the American cadets began their trips to the many countries which were to host them for the next two weeks. The foreign cadets boarded the MATS planes that brought the Americans to Germany and flew to Idlewild International Airport in New York to begin their American stay. Similar flights of cadets were also on their way to and from Central and South America from Charleston AFB, South Carolina.

Four United States Senators took an active part in welcoming the foreign IACE cadets to the National Capital: Senators Robertson, Virginia; Canon, Nevada; Church, Idaho; and Dirksen, Illinois.

Maj Gen Lucas V Beau, USAF (Ret), and Mrs Beau entertained escort officers and VIPs at their lovely home in Washington, DC. General Beau is a former National Commander of Civil Air Patrol. Col Paul W Turner, Chairman of the National Board, was among the honored guests.

Host General Beau and Col Ashworth exchange greetings with Brig Gen Jack E Thomas, USAF, Asst Chief of Staff, Intelligence.

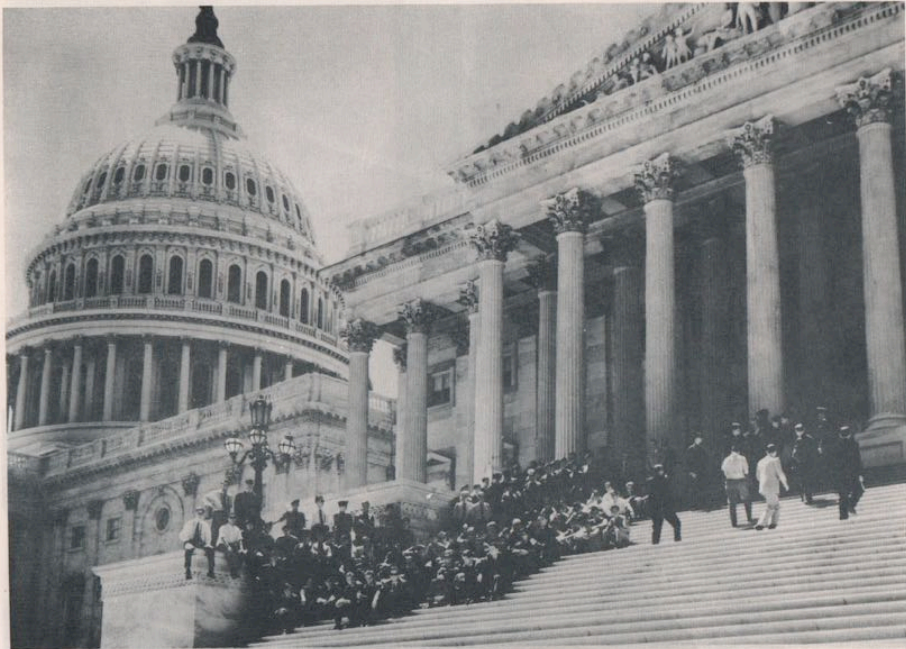

Mrs Nona Quarles, wife of the former Secretary of the Air Force, exchanges pleasantries with Col Ashworth.

The appetizing and enticing buffet table was a center of attraction at the Beau party.

Squadron Leader D Halcrow and H A Steel, escort officers for the Canadian group, leave the Beau reception line.
